From State House

Columbus, O., Nov. 23.—Students of political affairs assert that they see an attack has been made by State Auditor Fullington and other Republican leaders on the State Tax Commission, on the competitive bidding plan for awarding deposits of state money and on the state highway department. The attack upon the three was concealed behind statement charging the state administration with extravagance in increasing salaries in these three departments and a few others. It will not be an open fight against the three departments, but a bushwhacking affair with the salary increases as a weapon.

The increases were made to take care of additional work brought on by reorganizations in the different departments. In each instance there was a strong demand for the changes in policies which were regarded as reforms. The opening volley was in the form of a statement by Fullington setting forth a list of salary increases in all the old departments of the state. The State Tax Commission, created in 1910, necessarily comes in the list. The attack by Fullington on this commission was to be expected, for that body is compelling the corporations to pay their taxes. No longer will it be possible for Republican leaders to permit these corporations to dodge their taxes in exchange for big campaign contributions. The State Board of Tax Revision, of which Fullington, ex-officio, was a member, formerly had authority to remit taxes upon these concerns, and thus the corporations were put under obligations to members of the body. The people will not permit Fullington or any one else to destroy the State Tax Commission, a body that has lowered the taxes of farmers and home owners over $7,000,000 per year, and has increased the revenue of the state from special corporation taxes many thousands of dollars annually.

It also is easy to see the cause for the attack on the competitive bidding plan for awarding state money. For years Republican state treasurers loaned the funds to banks and pocketed all the interest earnings. The old plan was full of graft and corruption. State Treasurer Creamer, who took the lead in the movement for the competitive bidding plan, has merely rearranged his office work to take care of the additional work required to make awards under the new system, and now Fullington and others are attempting to use that as a club to destroy the only honest plan for depositing money.

The attack on the reorganization of the highway department was a direct slap at good roads enthusiasts, who worked for years in vain when Republicans were in control, to obtain such a rearrangement of the Highway department that the work of improving the wretched roads of the state could be carried on more expeditiously, and with a higher degree of efficiency. Good roads enthusiasts will not stand for any interference with that department, and Fullington will learn it to his sorrow.

The people will readily see into this plan of Fullington and other Republicans to destroy some of the big reforms by holding up to public view a few inconsequential salary increases. In each instance the new clerks that have been employed in the departments have assisted in bringing in new revenues from 100 to 500 times greater than the amount of salary increases.

In two state departments alone, the state board of public works, and the state board of health, many positions were abolished, and the saving is far in excess of the total increases in all state departments, which has been made to raise the work in them to a higher degree of efficiency. In the Treasurer's office, the increase in revenue under the competitive bidding plan exceeds the total salary increases in all departments.

That certainly is good business. The people like that kind of work.

completed its task of appraising the property of telephone companies for taxation, and the result is an increase of 300 per cent. over the total valuation for 1909.

Even though the companies are on the duplicate this year at substantial times, they were last year, they probably will not pay much more than 50 or 60 per cent. more than they paid last year. These concerns had been paying more than some of the other utilities. This means the lifting of a big burden from the shoulders of the farmer and home owner.

The valuations for three years are as follows: 1909 $15,551,398 1910 21,798,589 1911 69,914,429 State Auditor Fullington in his detailed statement of appropriations of the Democratic general assembly, pointed out that there has been an increase in salaries in old offices in the state house of $73,130, but the auditor, who is devoting more time to political maneuvering than he is to the duties of his office, says that he learned from former machine boss State Auditor Guilbert—neglected to call attention to the many economies that have been effected during the Harmon administration.

In one bill alone—that of abolishing county infirmaries directors—the general assembly saved the people $275,000 a year. By enacting the low rate law the people were saved $4,000,000 a year. By impartially enforcing the law levying a tax on the capital stock of domestic corporations a stop was put to an annual loss of $1,000,000. A law to prevent sales of fraudulent fertilizer saved the farmers $1,000,000 a year.

The central board of control for nineteen state institutions will save $500,000 a year. Another law limiting the amount that county officers can expend for clerk hire saved $50,000 a year.

By strict enforcement of the excise law, public corporations will pay an additional $250,000 in 1911.

The competitive bidding plan for awards of public money has increased the state's revenue $75,000 a year. If State Auditor Fullington wants to be honest he will call attention to these facts, when he tells of the few salary increases made to get this big revenue and to stop leaks.

Question. Did the people of Ohio elect Ed. M. Fullington state auditor to transact the duties imposed by law upon that office, or was he elected merely to give out partisan and unfair statements for the purpose of discrediting public officers of opposite political faith seeking to do their duty? The people guillotined several former Republican politicians of Fullington's stripe for neglecting their public duties to do political manipulating and Fullington appears to be courting an execution.

State Auditor Fullington is so busy these days giving out statements that are not required by law, that it is impossible for him to find time to perform the duties imposed upon him by law to see how he will find time to by law.

TWO YOUTHS CHARGED WITH ABDUCTING A 15-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Akron, O., Nov. 23.—Charged with abducting Maria Myers, a pretty 15-year-old girl of Marengo, O. Roy Baker, 21, and Charles Moore, 24, Mt. Pleasant, were arrested and taken back to their homes. The little girl has been turned over to the sheriff. Facts found upon investigation cause local officers to declare it a case of white slavery. The girl is charged with delinquency. At the jail here she broke down and cried when questioned. "I don't want to go here," she sobbed, "and I know I was doing wrong. I have been homesick since I came here, but I did not want to go home and face them. Now I have to. What will mother say?"

The trio had been here some time. The charge is that Baker, with whom the child was infatuated, induced her to leave her village home and run away with him and his companion to Akron, where the two had positions in the Goodyear rubber factory. She was tired of doing chores on a farm, she said, and listened eagerly to promises made of a delightful "life in a great city." The three drove from Marengo in a buggy and were not heard from until lately, when friends of the girl saw her here, and notified Sheriff J. D. Chilcote, of Mt. Pleasant.

When apprehended the men were at their work and insisted they were not living with the girl, who was working in a South Akron restaurant.

BREWERS DESERT PHOEBE COUZINS AT NEW PHILADELPHIA

New Philadelphia, O., Nov. 23.—Angry because the "local opinion committee," after inviting her here to take part in the "wet" and "dry" campaign and then refused to give her engagements or even pay her expenses, Miss Phoebe Cousins, 67, famous liquor advocate, suffragist and lawyer, is in a hotel here preparing to fight the "wets" of Tuscarawas county.

Miss Cousins has letters in which a local "wet" leader invited her here to speak for the liberals. After she arrived here, she says, they informed her that they had changed their minds and that she could get along as best she could.

The woman is penniless. Several months ago, while in Washington, D. C., she fell and has been quite feeble ever since. She has indicated that she might take the matter up in court. The United Brewers' association, for which she was a leading platform worker for years, recently suspended her annuity, and she says she will go to the courts for that.

After trying in vain to get money from local wets, as she alleges, she has written friends in Washington, D. C., for finances to provide for her residence here.

Miss Cousins gained considerable notoriety several years ago when she engaged in a newspaper debate with Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, after the latter had taken a prominent part in draping a bust of Lord Nelson, the famous English naval commander, with an American flag.

"I gave Mrs. Roosevelt a piece of my mind then," she said, "and since that time things have been going wrong with me. I believe the Roosevelt and British element in this country are back of it all."

Bars Women on Juries.

Sacramento, Calif., Nov. 23.—Attorney General F. S. Webb today ruled women cannot serve as jurors in this state.

The question having been raised as a result of the success of the equal suffrage constitutional amendment.

"Under the common law," says Webb, "a jury consisting of twelve free and lawful men and under the same law women were not eligible to jury duty. I think our code did not change the common law rule."

"I don't understand that the constitutional amendment has affected the question."
